Work To Be Resumed

On The Anaconda, Rabbit Foot and White Horse Group Mines For Which Large Sums Have Been Offered and Refused

The excellent returns from Messrs. Graingers & McIntyre's properties has given a fresh impetus to copper mining in the White Horse district, and in the course of the next two or three weeks a force of men will be put to work on the Anaconda mine, which has already had sufficient development done to prove it equally rich as the Copper King.

The group of mines comprising the Anaconda, Rabbit Foot and White Horse, is owned by Messrs. J.P. Whitney, A. P. Benton, Ole Dickson, W.A. Pucket, Charley Ward and O'Neil. Of these the Anaconda is the furthest advanced in development, 135 feet of tunnel having already been run, besides numerous cross-cuts and several shafts to a depth of 20 feet.

Last June $100,000 was offered and refused for the Anaconda and five weeks ago an offer of $150,000 for the Anaconda and Rabbit Foot was also declined.

The lode on which these claims are located shows an average width of 75 feet, and assays from picked ore have given values as high as $258 per ton.

At the Anaconda there are now about 100 tons of ore on the dump, but the owners have decided not to ship any of it at present, and will wait for the erection of a smelter close at hand which has every indication of being an accomplished fact during the coming summer.

1962 News from the Whitehorse Star

"THIS IS IT!"

"I thought to myself, this is it. I've met my maker."

That is vernon Eklund's description of being buried alive in a sewer trench cave-in Wednesday on the new vocational school site in Whitehorse.

In hospital here Mr. Eklund said he and Ronald Burnett were getting ready to lay the last five-foot length of pipe. They were watching the bank as they had been told to keep their eyes on it ... "It's undercut and there's a lot of weight on it."

Mr. Eklund said he was "scared of it and pretty sure it would cave in" but Mr. Burnett thought it was frozen and would not. He heard someone shout, "Lookout." He turned around to see how much dirt was coming down and "that's when I got it right in the face."

"I had eight inches over me and Ronnie had two feet. The last thing I remember things were going black then someone pulled the dirt out from over my head ... they were digging with their hands. They got my head clear in five minutes ... I was pinned and couldn't breath."

Mr. Eklund said: "It was a good experience in one way. You work in a ditch and you never think about... how deep you are and this has to happen to really smarten you up.

Eklund said that Nelson Ford, the superintendent on the job started to dig him out. "He got my head out and then started to look for Ronnie ... Ronnie was just six inches from me."

"I sure thought I'd met my Waterloo ... you hear about mine cave-ins but don't think anything about it. You've got to be buried to realize what it is and what people go through ... those big stones were pushing against the back of my ribs and crushing me in like an accordion ... there was sand packed into me everywhere and there was blood running down my head. Afterwards the two men in hospital agreed they were "sure lucky to be there talking to each other."

Mr. Eklund said somebody had shouted to them to "run" but they had run the wrong way. He still had his shovel in his hand but couldn't let go of it.

A baker by trade, Eklund is from Parry Sound, Ontario but has been roaming since he was 13. He thinks the Yukon is a "wonderful country" but plans to go home in 1963. Just out of hospital before the cave in, he had slipped on some ice and broken his ankle last month. He had been on the job only five days.
